PERSONAL DATA

A translator of fiction with a thirst in the heart, a deep passion for languages and literature and inspiration for development in this field. My specialisation is English.

- Attention to detail, a deep understanding of the context and culture are among my main qualities, as well as the ability to convey the author's style and mood of the work. I have a strong skill in working with terms and stylistic features of various genres.

- I am a quick learner, use tools effectively and strive for achievements in the field of fiction translation. I set myself ambitious goals in improving my translation skills, learning new languages and expanding my literary palette.

- I am looking for part-time employment, preferably distantly, which allows me to effectively combine work with personal development and other professional projects. I am ready to take on new challenges and contribute to the development of your publishing house, providing translations that will resonate in the hearts of readers.
